Census: Economy on Upswing

New figures back up indicators that the nation is recovering

Washington

More young adults are leaving their parents' homes to take a chance with college or a job. Across the nation, people are on the move again after putting their lives on hold and staying put. Once-sharp declines in births are leveling off, and poverty is slowing.

A new snapshot of census data provides sociological backup for what economic indicators were already suggesting: that the nation is in a tentative, fragile recovery.

"We may be seeing the beginning of the American family's recovery from the Great Recession," said Andrew Cherlin, a professor of sociology and public policy at Johns Hopkins University.

About 12 percent of the nation's population, or 36.5 million, moved to a new home, up from a record low of 11.6 percent in 2011.

Among young adults 25 to 29, the most mobile age group, moves

JUSTIN SULLIVAN/GETTY IMAGES

Census data released Thursday show a slight uptick in the number of young people who are leaving their parents' homes to head to college or try to land a job.

Meanwhile ...

Not all is well, however. The jobless rate remains high at 8.1 percent. While housing sales have more recently gained, home ownership last year dropped for a fifth-straight year to 64.6 percent, the lowest in more than a decade, according to census figures. And more Americans than ever are turning to food stamps. (AP) also increased to 24.6 percent from a low of 24.1 percent in the previous year. Longer-distance moves rose modestly from 3.4 percent to 3.8 percent.

The new 2011 census figures released Thursday show progress in an economic recovery that technically began in mid-2009. The annual survey, supplemented with unpublished government figures as of March 2012, covers a year in which unemployment fell modestly from 9.6 percent to 8.9 percent.

Taken as a whole, however, analysts say the census data, which track changing patterns in everyday life, provide the latest evidence of a stabilizing U.S. economy.

"It could be the modest number of new jobs or simply the belief that the worst is over."

— ANDREW CHERLIN, A PROFESSOR OF SOCIOLOGY AND PUBLIC POLICY AT JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY, REFERRING TO THE CENSUS FIGURES ON THE ECONOMY

Richard Freeman, an economist at Harvard University, said the data point to a "fragile recovery," with the economy still at risk of falling back into recession, depending in part on who is president and whether Congress averts a "fiscal cliff" of deep government spending cuts and higher taxes in January. "Given the situation in the world economy, we are doing better than many other countries," he said. HOPE YEN (AP)

Obama: Romney Is Out of Touch

Republican counters and says he'll win the election this fall

Miami

President Barack Obama cast Mitt Romney on Thursday as an out-of-touch challenger for the White House and an advocate of education cuts that could cause teacher strikes to spread from Chicago to other cities. The Republican countered that the U.S. economy "is bumping along the bottom" under Obama, and he predicted victory in the fall.

The two men eyed each other across hotly contested Florida, a state with 29 electoral votes, more than any other battleground in the close race for the White House.

"When you express an attitude that half the country considers itself victims, that somehow they want to be dependent on government, my thinking is maybe you haven't

Meanwhile ...

Less than seven weeks before Election Day, polls make the race a close one, likely to be settled in eight or so swing states where neither man has a solid edge. President Obama has gained ground in polls in some of those states since the completion of the Democratic National Convention two weeks ago, while Mitt Romney has struggled with controversies of his own making that have left Republicans frustrated at his performance as a candidate. (AP) gotten around a lot," the president said at a town hall-style forum. That was in response to a question about Romney's recent observation that 47 percent of Americans pay no income tax and believe they are victims and entitled to an array of federal benefits.

For his part, Romney was eager to move past that controversy, which has knocked him off stride. He disclosed plans for a three-day bus tour early next week through Ohio with running mate Paul Ryan and sought to return the campaign focus to the economic issues that have dominated the race all year.

At a fundraiser in Miami, Romney looked ahead to debates this fall with Obama.

"He's a very eloquent speaker and ... he'll be very eloquent in describing his vision," the Republican said. "But he can't win by his words, because his record speaks so loudly in our ears. What he has done in the last four years is establish an economy that's bumping along the bottom."

Group: The Pill Not Best for Teens

Chicago

Teenage girls may prefer the pill, but their doctors should be recommending IUDs or hormonal implants — long-lasting and more effective birth control that you don't have to remember to use every time, the nation's leading gynecologists group said Thursday.

An IUD, or intrauterine device, is a small, T-shaped piece of plastic inserted in the uterus that can prevent pregnancy for up to 10 years. An implant is a matchstick-size plastic rod that releases hormones. It is placed under the skin of the upper arm and lasts three years.

The IUD and implants are safe and nearly 100 percent effective at preventing pregnancy, and should be "first-line recommendations," the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists said in updating its guidance for teens.

Both types of contraception are more invasive than the pill, requiring a doctor to put them in place. That, and the fact that IUDs and implants cost hundreds of dollars, are probably why the pill is still the most popular form of contraception in the U.S. LINDSEY TANNER (AP)

FINDINGS

The Cat's Pajamas

Scientists say they've found the gene that sets the common tabby pattern, the journal Science reported Thursday. It's one of several genes that work to create the distinctive design of a cat's coat, and it's the first of the pattern genes to be identified. Cats with narrow stripes — the "mackerel" pattern — have a working copy of the gene. But if a mutation turns the gene off, the cat ends up with the blotchy "classic" pattern. (AP)

Focus Shifts to Islam, Tolerance

As outcry fades over film, debate over free speech emerges

Cairo

Behind the anger over a film mocking the Prophet Muhammad, public protest is giving way to measured debate over free speech in the new Muslim world.

But while many crave more openness, few if any will go so far as to say that includes the right to blaspheme.

Angry shouts of “No, no to America!” and “No to Israel!” have been balanced by voices condemning the weeklong violence that has targeted U.S. and other Western embassies and left more than 30 dead in seven countries, including Ambassador Chris Stevens in Benghazi, Libya.

Anger is still palpable over the anti-Islam video made in California, as well as French political cartoons that denigrate Muhammad, but most of the Arab world has not seen protests for much of this week.

“Muslims should know that Islamic extremist groups bear some responsibility for the uproar.”

— SHEIK HAMEED MAROUF, A SUNNI CLERIC IN BAGHDAD

The streets around the U.S. Embassy in Cairo, where clashes raged for days, were relatively quiet Thursday.

The violent backlash stretched from Indonesia to Morocco. The easing of the violence reflects the balance that some Islamic nations are trying to find as they work to nourish democracy in societies where blasphemy is a crime.

“The whole thing, our reaction, was way, way over the top,” said Ali Abdel-Halim, a 22-year-old from Cairo, who said he watched the clashes but did not participate.

Khalil al-Anani, an expert on

Meanwhile ...

Washington began airing ads in Pakistan condemning an anti-Islam film, “Innocence of Muslims,” that was produced in the U.S. — an olive branch to the Muslim world. Protests over the film have tapered off in many countries, but in Pakistan on Thursday, more than 2,000 people tried to reach the U.S. Embassy. Anger also flared in the town of Chaman, shown, where protesters burned effigies of President Barack Obama. The demonstrations are expected to grow Friday. (AP)

Islamist movements, predicted it will take a generation or more for Mideast nations to develop a working democracy that respects individual rights and Muslim values.

“The Arab world is on the edge of choosing between joining the modern world and political development, or to remain as in the last few centuries,” he said. “There shouldn’t be a trade-off. But it’s an enormous challenge, and it will take time.” HAMZA HENDAWI AND LARA JAKES (AP)

Iran Building an Internet Of Its Own, Officials Say

Washington

The Iranian government, determined to limit Western influence and defend itself against cyberattacks, appears to have laid the technical foundations for a national online network that would be detached from the Internet and permit tighter control over the flow of information.

Iranian officials and outside experts say that development of the network has accelerated following cyberattacks aimed at the country's nuclear program.

The Iranian network is not expected to entirely replace the Internet. But for Iranians, it could be a well-run alternative, and U.S.

Backstory

The concept of a self-contained Web network has been reverberating within Iran for almost a decade, though often treated with skepticism. Such a network is likely to worry the Obama administration, which has spent tens of millions of dollars on initiatives designed to ease access to the Internet in Iran and other countries with repressive governments. (TWP) researchers say they are for the first time seeing evidence of an operational network that is consistent with Iran's publicly stated plans.

where Casey Trees is setting up its installation, which will stretch across three parking spots. In addition to setting up sod, grass and (of course) trees, the nonprofit is inviting passersby to take a load off at a picnic table, chat with arborists and play a game of cornhole.

Hopefully, those who stop by will recognize not just the beauty of trees but also their environmental benefits, says Casey Trees' Christopher Horn. And then they'll be motivated to help the group reach its goal of increasing the city's tree canopy from 35 percent to 40 percent by 2035. By their math, that requires planting 8,600 trees a year, while maintaining existing trees. The target: 216,300 trees in D.C. (Compare that to the 275,000 vehicles currently registered in D.C.)

Over in Rosslyn, instead of trees, you'll see a shopping cart that's nearly as big. The 7-foot-tall sculpture by J.P. Flick will be rolled into the space at the corner of Wilson Boulevard and Lynn Street, where people are invited to donate used clothing to the Arlington Street People's Assistance Network.

Nearby, Artisphere (1101 Wilson Blvd., Artisphere.com) is hosting a free exhibit, "Beyond the Parking Lot: The Change and Re-Assessment of Our Modern Landscape," to coincide with the event (it runs through Nov. 4). The exhibit, inspired by the Joni Mitchell lyric, "They paved paradise / Put up a parking lot," showcases works that depict the decay caused by the rise of the automobile.

If you want to check it out after 5 p.m. or over the weekend, you're in luck: There's free parking.

It got its start in San Francisco in 2005, when an art studio placed sod, a tree and a bench in a two-hour spot in a part of the city lacking public space. The concept has since been aped all over the world, using those familiar rectangles for a variety of unfamiliar purposes, including a bike repair shop and a wedding venue. The event's goal is to get folks thinking about how urban space is allocated, and whether we really need as much asphalt as we have.

Few Fireworks in Senate Debate

Kaine, Allen square off on television but keep things polite

McLean, Va.

Tim Kaine said he would be open to a minimum income tax for every American as he squared off Thursday against George Allen in their first televised debate in Virginia's nationally watched Senate race.

The two former governors met for an hourlong debate in McLean, Va., hosted by "Meet the Press" host David Gregory.

The face-off came one day after a new Washington Post poll showed Kaine, a Democrat, opening up an eight-point lead in the long-deadlocked contest — among the most competitive races in the country, with the outcome likely to help determine which party controls the Senate.

The race had been neck and neck in polls going back to May 2011.

With seven weeks to go before Election Day, both men are fighting to succeed Sen. Jim Webb, a Democrat.

Allen, a Republican, lost the seat

to Webb six years ago.

The debate was mostly polite, touching on well-worn topics such as jobs and the economy, women's issues and gay rights, looming defense cuts and the federal health-care overhaul.

The debate, which began at noon at the Capital One Conference Center, was sponsored by the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce and WRC-TV.

Kaine and Allen debated in Hot Springs, Va., in July. They also squared off in Richmond in December, before Allen had won the GOP nod.

Two more debates are scheduled for October. LAURA VOZZELLA (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Police say two men were caught selling phony iPhone 4S models in Lanham, Md.

LANHAM, MD.

Father and Son Charged With Selling Fake iPhones

A father-son duo have been charged with counterfeiting, theft and doing business without a license after they were caught selling still-in-the-box phony iPhone 4S models to undercover Prince George's County police officers in Lanham, Md. Police identified those charged Thursday as Daniel E. Parker, 47, of Capitol Heights, and his son, Harold L. Parker, 25, of the District. Sgt. Aubrey Thompson of the Prince George's police department said, "It fooled me." (EXPRESS)

6 Counties in Area Rank Among Most Affluent

New census numbers show the Washington region is home to six of the 10 counties with the highest household incomes in the country. Loudoun County, Va., topped the list with a median household income of about $119,000 in 2011, followed by Fairfax County, Va., at nearly $106,000 and Arlington, Va., with almost $101,000. Other counties in the top 10 are Howard and Montgomery in Maryland and Prince William in Virginia. (AP)

D.C. Death 5 Years After Shooting Ruled Homicide

A D.C. man who was shot five years ago has died, and police are investigating it as a homicide. D.C. police said 36-year-old Kendall Mack died Monday after being taken to the hospital. The chief medical examiner's office has ruled the death a homicide. Mack and another person were shot in November 2007 in the 1600 block of W Street SE. (AP)

Smithsonian Plans National Ad Campaign

Washington

The most-visited museums in the U.S. are about to launch their first-ever national advertising campaign to connect more people with the Smithsonian Institution online, in schools or in the museums themselves.

The 166-year-old museum complex unveiled its ad strategy Thursday with a new tagline declaring the Smithsonian and its research are "Seriously Amazing" for learning. The goal is to reintroduce the museums as more than once-in-a-lifetime destinations.

The ads feature a diverse set of young characters posing quirky questions that can be answered at the website Seriouslyamazing.com. (AP)

D.C. Weighs MLK Library Designs

Washington

By carving a large "doughnut hole" into the center of the existing Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial Library, the building could be an exemplary 21st-century main library space, full of light, open to multiple uses, easy to navigate and worthy of "a great city," officials say.

Meeting on Wednesday night in special session in the main atrium of the rigorously modernist building, the library's board heard proposals for how to renovate the dilapidated steel-and-glass icon. Ideas included adding two more floors to the existing four, renting space to other tenants and adding a cafe space.

District librarian Ginnie Cooper said she had asked the library's architect of record, the Freelon Group, to build on ideas that emerged from a November Urban Land Institute report.

Freelon came back with two basic architectural plans, both of which require cutting a large light well into the center of the rectangular structure.

D.C. Councilman Tommy Wells, D-Ward 6, who chairs the committee that oversees the library, was pleased they were thinking about ways to remake the building. "What I like about it is they have met the challenge of making this building an exciting place," he said. PHILIP KENNICOTT (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Quarterback Perry Hills, running back Wes Brown and wide receiver Stefon Diggs—all true freshmen—have given Maryland's offense a much-needed spark this season.

UMd.'s Freshmen Cheer

As trio of youngsters shine, Terps have reason for optimism

Terps Football

Maryland scored three touchdowns last Saturday against Connecticut. In the end, those touchdowns mattered little because the Terrapins lost by three points and the focus was on coach Randy Edsall falling to his former employer.

But remember those touchdowns and remember that game. If Maryland is able to pull itself back to relevancy, it very well could be on the backs of the three players who scored those touchdowns, all of them true freshmen.

Running back Wes Brown's 19-yard run in the second quarter and wide receiver Stefon Diggs' 29-yard reception in the fourth quarter were the first collegiate touchdowns for those players. Quarterback Perry Hills, through three games, has three passing touchdowns and two rushing touchdowns entering Saturday's game at No. 8 West Virginia.

That Maryland's offense relies so heavily upon true freshmen at critical skill positions is reason for concern and for optimism. Inconsistency is to be expected, but so is progress.

"We're all looking to get better every day," Diggs said. "There are a lot of situations we haven't been in yet, but we react well. The team is doing well. We're all learning."

Of the three, Diggs carries the most potential. A five-star recruit out of Good Counsel High School, he is electric with the ball. Against Connecticut, between receptions and kick/punt returns, he compiled 223 yards of total offense, leaving Edsall vowing to further incorporate him into the game plan.

"The athleticism, the dynamic plays, I kind of expected he could do those things," Edsall said. "But I didn't expect the experience, the knowledge of some of the things he can see that he's doing."

Brown became the Terrapins' primary rusher last week, rebounding from two fumbles a week earlier at Temple. His physicality and ability to spot an opening have impressed his teammates.

"He hits the hole pretty hard," senior offensive tackle Justin Gilbert said. "That helps us out because those holes are only open for a couple seconds."

Though Hills may be the least heralded of the true freshmen trio, as the quarterback, he bears the most responsibility. And his play will dictate the fate of Maryland's season more than any other player. After the Terps sputtered late in last week's loss, Hills blamed himself.

"I don't accept losing," he said. "I promised my team that I'll prepare like I've never prepared before to get ready for this next game."

4 The number of touchdowns No. 8 West Virginia is favored to beat Maryland by, according to oddsmakers in Las Vegas. West Virginia (2-0) is averaging 55.5 points per game and 386 passing yards, both top five in the country. Maryland (2-1) is averaging 21.3 points per game, tied for 98th nationally, and 148 passing yards, ranked 116th. "We've got a tough one this week, that's for sure," Maryland coach Randy Edsall said. "Our defense is going to have their work cut out for them." D.T.

Band-Aid Solutions

Season-ending injuries will give several new faces a shot to step up

The Redskins

"Next man up." Translating from NFL parlance, it's the philosophy that each and every player on the roster must be ready when his turn inevitably comes.

For the Redskins, that truism hits home as they prepare for their 2012 FedEx Field debut Sunday against the Cincinnati Bengals. Season-ending injuries to stalwarts Brian Orakpo (pectoral) and Adam Carriker (knee) have weakened an already shaky defensive unit.

Now, their replacements — the linebacker combo of Rob Jackson and Chris Wilson and defensive lineman Jarvis Jenkins — must be ready to go against a Bengals team that doesn't lack for playmaking threats.

"We have to capitalize on the opportunities we get and go from there," said Jackson, a fourth-year pro with 16 career tackles.

Redskins coach Mike Shanahan has built a roster with players he feels can produce in any situation, so he expects his replacements will deliver results.

Redskins defensive end Adam Carriker lies on the field after being injured in the first quarter of Sunday's game against the St. Louis Rams. Carriker is out for the year.

"They've got an opportunity to show what they can do," he said. "We've got a lot confidence in them because they are on our football team and that is what they are paid to do — play at a high level."

For Jenkins, this represents an

3 Things to Watch

1. Shootout: The matchup with the Bengals pits two of the league's worst statistical passing defenses against each other. Expect plenty of big plays and points.

2. Block party: The Redskins have had two blocked punts in two weeks, so you better believe the Bengals will be coming hard against a seemingly confused special teams unit.

3. Receiving pains: Both WR Pierre Garcon and TE Fred Davis are banged up, which may limit their effectiveness and force QB Robert Griffin III to spread the ball around. E.S.

opportunity to make an impact on a stacked defensive line. The second-year player from Clemson missed all of last year after getting injured in the preseason but was expected to be an integral part of the team's depth this year. That changes now, as Jenkins steps in to replace Carriker, whose gritty work in the trenches often went unnoticed.

"We plan on going out there and showing that there's not going to be a drop-off."

— ROB JACKSON, WHO WILL FILL IN FOR THE INJURED BRIAN ORAKPO

"He is very talented," Shanahan said of Jenkins. "Obviously unproven, but I will be surprised if he doesn't play well."

Washington's defense has not been playing well, even before the injury bug hit them. The Redskins are 28th in the league in yards allowed per game (405), and perhaps more troubling, they rank last in defensive penalty yards.

It may be too much to ask the "next men up" to turn things around quickly, but they look forward to the opportunity.

"It's another dream come true," Jackson said of starting in the NFL. "I'm going to take it all in and then take care of my responsibilities."

ELLIOTT SMITH (FOR EXPRESS)

Griffin Is Already a Prime Target

Rookie QB is wary of cheap shots after 'dirty' hits by Rams

The Redskins

Pushed and shoved throughout a game he felt was "unprofessional" and "dirty," Robert Griffin III finally heard the obvious from one of the St. Louis Rams defensive players last Sunday.

"I remember one play," the Redskins quarterback said Wednesday. "After the play, the guy said: 'We're going to hit you every play.'"

"I said: 'Isn't this football?' It's nothing that I'm not used to. It was extremely weird the way they went about it, though."

A few days have gone by since Sunday's 31-28 loss in St. Louis, but

"Teams are going to try to hit me because they don't think I can take a hit. I think I've proved over my career that I can."

— ROBERT GRIFFIN III, REACTING TO THE RAMS' PLAN OF ATTACK LAST SUNDAY. THE QUARTERBACK SAID ST. LOUIS CROSSED THE LINE WITH "DIRTY THINGS."

it's still too raw to let it rest. Griffin is going to handle the ball a lot this year — he already had 20 rushes in addition to 55 pass attempts — so the Redskins don't want him taking any extra hits, especially ones that he feels aren't clean.

Griffin was sacked only once by the Rams, but he was knocked down several times. "There was some extracurricular stuff going on after the plays," Griffin said. "They were doing a lot of dirty things."

The Rams, for their part, are not losing sleep over the comments. "We're going to play our own style of football and I'm sorry he didn't like it," Rams linebacker Jo-Lonn Dunbar said Thursday. "I hope he has a good day."

Big hits are something the Redskins have to watch as they prepare for this week's game against the Cincinnati Bengals.

If the first couple of weeks are any indication, the Redskins (1-1) are going to have to rely on Griffin more than planned this season. Washington has already allowed 63 points and has lost injured defensive starters Brian Orakpo and Adam Carriker for the season.

Griffin and the offense were able to outscore the Saints in Week 1 and came close to beating the Rams. The Redskins lead the NFL in scoring with 68 points, and they might have to keep up that pace unless the defense improves.

"We've definitely got to put up a lot of points to help them out until they get their situation on that side of the ball fixed with the injuries and the stuff like that," tight end Fred Davis said. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

Replacement Refs Affecting Odds on Games

Pro Football

Las Vegas casinos think this week-end's NFL games will be the highest-scoring ever thanks to the league's replacement officials.

Odds makers say casinos are changing their expectations as interim referees add new variables to the game, changing its pace and the approaches taken by players and coaches. Casinos haven't fully changed lines yet, because there have been only two weeks of games and referees might adjust how they call games based on weekly feedback from the league.

But oddsmaker Mike Colbert of Cantor Gaming says home teams will deserve an extra half-point in their favor if games are called all year the way they were officiated in Week 2. "It's starting to concern us a bit," Colbert said. "[Officials] should have no influence on the total or the side." (AP)

Ace in the Shadows

Zimmermann may not get the fanfare, but he has the stats

The Nationals

The thing about Jordan Zimmermann is that if you're not paying attention, you might not even notice he's there.

The right-hander doesn't bring with him the outsized reputation and expectations of Stephen Strasburg, nor is he a grinning, joking extrovert like Gio Gonzalez. Zimmermann is just a guy who gets paid to throw a baseball in their shadows.

Another thing about him: He's pretty good at it. For comparison's sake, Gonzalez will pitch Saturday afternoon against the Brewers (in town for a four-game series) in search of his 20th win, looking to put a lockdown on the National League Cy Young award. Gonzalez has pitched 186⅓ innings this year, allowing 61 earned runs, good for a 2.95 ERA.

Zimmermann has pitched 182⅓ innings, allowing 60 earned runs. His ERA is 2.96. On Wednesday, allowing just one run over six innings, he stopped the Nationals' three-game losing streak. In the process, he picked up his 11th win.

The difference? The Nationals have scored 5.17 runs in games started by Gonzalez, but 4.63 runs in games started by Zimmermann. His latest quality start — six innings or more, three runs or fewer — came in a ballpark that was nearly empty because Tuesday's rainout prompted an unscheduled doubleheader and a 4 p.m. start. It was Zimmermann's 22nd quality start, compared to Gonzalez's 20.

"Definitely, fastball command was there today," catcher Kurt Suzuki said Wednesday. "The key today was, he made the pitch when he needed to. That's a good sign."

With the postseason nearing, Zimmermann's outing was further evidence that he has bounced back from a troubling August. Between Aug. 4 and Sept. 1, a span of six starts, he allowed four earned runs twice and eight earned runs once. He pitched at least six innings only once. Prior to that, he had pitched at least six innings in each of his 21 starts.

"I felt fine the whole time," Zimmermann said. "I was just nibbling a bit, missing some pitches. I stayed more on the plate [Wednesday]. When I do that, I get some quick outs and some early contact. That's what I want to do."

In his past three starts, Zimmermann has a 2.50 ERA, a reassuring development. Strasburg's shutdown means a bright spotlight will be shining on the Nationals' postseason rotation. Zimmermann will no longer be in the shadows.

Nail-Biting Finish To Nats' Season

Your nails are frayed. The TV turns right to MASN once you hit the power button. And all of a sudden, you're watching the Braves' scores compulsively. Welcome to the past week for Nationals fans.

Whether Washington clinched a playoff spot Thursday night in a game after Express' deadline or gets it done this weekend against the Brewers, the decades-long wait for a postseason game is essentially over. Now, all that nervous energy can be focused on the Nats' push to win the National League East.

It's comforting to know that Atlanta's sweep last weekend and the split doubleheader in D.C. only dropped the

It would take a Braves-style choke job for Washington not to claim the NL East title.

Nationals' division lead to five with 13 games to go.

It would take a full-blown collapse — similar to a Braves-style choke job — for Washington not to claim the NL East title. That doesn't mean this week hasn't been nerve-racking for D.C. baseball fans, who have so much invested in this team.

The Nationals have been great all year. Not only do they still have the best record in baseball, but they have been extremely enjoyable to watch. It would be heartbreaking if they didn't finish the job.

Just because we knew it wouldn't be easy to clinch the division doesn't mean it's easy to see how difficult it really is. Such is the fate of fans watching a contending team. Hopefully, Washingtonians will get used to it.

Roommates

You've heard the story: Guy and girl meet, fall in love, move in together and ... get a roommate?

Sabrina Jess, David Johnson and Joshua Hylton have been living in this unusual rental arrangement for the past few months. Jess, 25, and her fiancé, Johnson, 34, moved into a two-bedroom apartment in Manassas, Va., in January. Then in June, they asked Johnson's co-worker Hylton, 25, to move in.

High rent costs in the Washington area are driving couples to take on lodgers.

A Third Wheel

Hornbrook, a senior community manager with Carmel Apartments, which manages 17 apartments in Virginia and D.C.

There are other factors, too. Some couples want a third person around to share the workload around the apartment — it takes two to tango but three to put up drapes — or if they have an extra room they aren't using.

"I prefer to have someone," Jess said of living with Hylton. "I enjoy the fact that we are making use of the space that we have and being efficient with things."

Want to move in with your significant other (minus the single roommate)? Next week in Ready to Rent, a guide to cohabitating happily.

Susan Segal, a D.C.-based couple's therapist, says that, with her clients, the extra singleton often is a family member who needs a place to stay. "A couple I was working with had the wife's sister move in with them," Segal says.

Three's a Crowd

Living with a third wheel can be tricky for both the couple and the single person. How does a couple's relationship fare with another person living in close quarters?

Segal says a living situation like this can end up straining a couple's relationship.

"You give up a certain amount of privacy," Segal says. "You may lose a lot of important intimacy."

Segal advises roommates to make sure everyone is not only respectful of one another's physical space but emotional space as well. "The single person must realize that the couple needs time and space to be a couple," Segal says.

It's not just space that's important; there's timing, too. Couples and singles whose schedules are too similar can start to cramp one another's style.

"I do keep to myself," Hylton said. "I hang in my room, and when their door is closed, I don't bother knocking."

Schedules play an important part in it, Hornbrook says.

"If someone travels a lot or they have opposite work schedules, that could really work in their advantage," she says.

Even Steven?

Equally important: How do you split rent, chores and personal space?

Johnson, Jess and Hylton first tackled the question of rent. Rent becomes more complicated with a couple who are sharing a room but taking up more than half of the common space, making it unclear if the single person should pay half or a third.

Johnson and Jess decided Hylton should pay one-third of the rent. He and Jess "don't consider ourselves a single entity," Johnson says, explaining that most of Hylton's space is his room. "The number of rooms you take up is how much you should pay in rent."

Hornbrook says there are a variety of ways renters in this situation divide up rent. She's even known renters who measure the square footage that the single person will be using to determine their share.

"They'll base it on the amount of space that a person is actually living in — it can get kind of crazy," she says.

Give a Little, Get a Little

Hylton, Johnson and Jess have ironed out most of the kinks in their trifecta.

Joshua Hylton, center, has learned to give his engaged roomies, Sabrina Jess, at left with dog Chewbacca, and David Johnson, right, plenty of time to be a couple.

Lord of the Manners

If you're thinking of renting with a couple, basic roommate etiquette can be even more important than in a house of single folks. Keep in mind:

► Divide costs in a way everyone can agree on. Even if the couple pay less in rent because they share a room, that doesn't necessarily mean you shouldn't split your cable bill evenly.

► Know one another's schedules. A couple can plan "alone time" around when they know the single person will be away.

► Don't expect to hang out all the time. You'll need to be pretty independent to live with a couple. They're going to want their time alone, and a lot of it.

► Knock. Always knock.

One simple step they took was to make sure they didn't annoy one another too much. That means normal roommate stuff such as keeping up with chores (everyone agrees Hylton needs to take out the trash more) and respecting personal boundaries ("I have to wear pants around the house now," Jess jokes).

And everybody gets something out of the situation, beyond cheaper rent.

"I do feel safer," Jess says. "I'm convinced that every weird sound I hear is someone creeping around in the yard. It's nice to have someone extra around."

Couples therapist Segal says that having another person around can nip lovers' quarrels in the bud.

"I'm convinced that every weird sound I hear is someone creeping around in the yard. It's nice to have someone extra around."

— SABRINA JESS, WHO LIVES WITH HER FIANCE AND HIS SINGLE CO-WORKER IN A TWO-BEDROOM APARTMENT

"They can temper any arguments or issues the couple has because they don't want to argue," she says. "Sometimes it can defuse a couple's issues so they behave better."

A note to the solo lodger: If your couple roomies are arguing, never take sides. That's pretty much guaranteed to make things worse.

Try, Try Again

Johnson knows firsthand that a living situation like this can be emotionally sticky. Before he met Jess, he lived with his now-ex-girlfriend and his best friend. That girlfriend left him for the best friend/roommate. The two are now married.

But Johnson has given it another go, and he doesn't see that failed living situation as a reason to avoid living with an extra person. Things with Hylton have been working out so well, the trio don't plan to break up any time soon.

Says Johnson: "Jess and I are contemplating buying a house, and we're taking him with us."

Nicole Richie

FASHION VIXEN, ROCKER AT HEART

Add to Nicole Richie's ever-expanding résumé the title of fashion mogul. The 30-year-old author, actress, TV personality and clothing designer recently collaborated with Macy's for a 25-piece collection of rocker-chic pieces, including studded pleather leggings, flouncy silk peasant shirts and jewel-embellished blazers. With items priced between $40 and $90, Nicole Richie for Impulse makes the boho-meets-bad-girl style she's come to be known for accessible to nearly all.

What can shoppers expect from your new collaboration with Macy's?

I mixed feminine fabrics like lace with masculine fabrics like faux leather. Also a really great kaleidoscope peacock print. You'll still see a little bit of Winter Kate and House of Harlow [Richie's clothing and accessory lines, respectively] throughout the collection in details like the zipper pulls and buttons.

Do you suggest wearing your new line head-to-toe?

I understand that people already have an entire closet of clothes. So when I'm designing, I expect them to mix my pieces with their existing pieces. I want people to wear it in their own way, how it speaks to them, how they want to wear it.

Do you have any tips for people who might not be used to wearing this extreme of a look?

I think there is a safe way for people to try anything. If you wanted to go for more eccentric pants, you could pair them with a black or white T-shirt and flats. If you wanted to go for a more eccentric top, you can wear it with a pair of jeans.

Every piece is so different from the next. Would you say there's any one unifying theme?

For me, everything starts with music. I'm hugely inspired by the '60s and '70s. I love that time, and so I think you'll definitely feel a little bit of classic rock throughout the collection.

"For me, everything starts with music ... you'll definitely feel a little bit of classic rock."

If you had to compare it to one rock album, which would you choose?

I don't want to narrow it down to one. I want whoever is buying my clothing to make that decision for themselves.

Do you have a favorite piece in the collection?

I really love the biker jackets. There is a faux-leather and faux-fur jacket that is really cool. There's also a studded blazer that I think is really cool. I think that everyone's going to love the studded leather leggings.

How do you get in the mood to create?

I don't set aside time when I have to get into a mode. It's something that is always running through my brain that I have to do 24 hours a day, so it's not me sitting down trying to get into that mode. It's something that's running through me at all time. HOLLEY SIMMONS (EXPRESS)

Destination Known

YOU MAY BE LIVING in a cramped Shaw studio, but Three Potato Four's retro-style plastic key tags ($6 each, Threepotatofourshop.com) should make you feel as if you're checking into some upstate New York camp or far-flung African casbah. Faux places we want to visit include a Globetrotter Society and Penpal Society. The hipster website also sells a salvaged wood key rack ($32) that resembles part of an old library card catalog, should you need a place to show off your new fobs.

fanatics treat the pregame tailgate like a sport unto itself. For them, Crock-Pot's Cook and Carry Slow Cooker is a piece of must-have equipment ($70, Amazon.com). The portable slow cooker is a power-outlet-free means to transport and heat chili and bean dip on the go. A stoneware liner keeps food toasty up to 30 percent longer than other models, while handles and a locking lid get it to Point B without breaking your excessive celebration.

TRAVEL-MAD DESIGNER

Gretchen Scott hearts exotic destinations, which explains the Mumbai-meets-Marrakech flair of her preppy-but-pretty fall tunics (shown, $85) and dresses. New styles just jet-setted into Sherman Pickey (1647 Wisconsin Ave. NW; 202-333-4212), including an embroidered, pashmina-fabric dress ($175) we're dying to wear on a weekend away, even if it's just to Baltimore.

Dear Manolo

ANSWERS FROM THE SHOE BLOGGER

I am only 44 but was recently diagnosed with arthritis in my knees and was told by my doctor NO high heels. Any time I cheat and wear even a low heel (2 inches), I end up in pain for three days, so I'm back to flats. This summer has been fine because I can get away with ballet flats, and I can wear riding boots in the winter. But when I need to look professional for meetings and presentations, I need to wear skirt suits and a very professional-looking shoe. Can you help me? —BETH

Manolo says, ayyyyy! It is true, time is cruel! One minute you are the 22-year-old hottie who looks amazingly great dressed only in the ill-fitting burlap sack from the Sears, and the next you are twice that age and have just received the personal letters from both the Dolce and the Gabbana asking you to please, please, please stop wearing their clothing. (Look! Stefano has even enclosed the check and the Talbots catalog!)

And this says nothing about the various infirmities and physical indignities that are brought by the process of aging. Indeed, the Manolo, who is the gentleman of the certain age, has his own trick knee, one that renders him unable to walk without the slight limp or drink the vin ordinaire.

something to ink about

Some people rely on their shoddy memory to preserve life's special moments. The more adventurous turn their bodies into walking diaries, tattooing milestones — their child's first words, the painting that made them pursue a career in art — forever onto their person. "There are all sorts of reasons to get a tattoo," says Paul Roe, founder of Britishink and a featured artist in Strathmore's new "Skin" exhibit (see box at right). "It's decorative, it's in memorial, it's to join a group, even if that group is one." No longer just for jailbirds, tattoos are popping up on everyone from Harley riders to mini-van owners. If you've been considering ink and need some not-so-gentle prodding, consider this a very preliminary guide to three common styles — plus pointers from some of the District's most reputable parlors. HOLLEY SIMMONS (EXPRESS)

1 traditional japanese

Irezumi, or the ancient art of tattooing originating in Japan, dates as far back as the Paleolithic period. Designs signified a person's status, religion or spirituality or served as a means of punishment. "They weren't using electric tattoo machines like you see today. They were doing this by hand with bamboo shoots," says Fatty, the owner of Fatty's Custom Tattoos (1333 Connecticut Ave. NW, #300; 202-452-0999). The style is categorized by large-scale, elaborate designs with a prominent image in the center, usually a symbol such as a koi fish or dragon, offset by dark wind bars or crashing waves. There's often subtle color gradient and heavy shading.

FATTY'S WORDS OF WISDOM

"Don't rely on Yelp reviews. It's a matter of finding that artist you connect with not only artistically but also personally."

what to expect

Cost: Prices are dictated by the parlor and depend on size, placement and intricacy. They start around $50 and can go up to thousands for custom work.

Pain: "Most people think it's a poke," says Matt Wojciechowski at Jinx Proof. "But it's more consistent. It's an annoying feeling more than anything."

Healing time: Depending on the size, your new tattoo will take anywhere from five days to two weeks to fully heal. Don't even think about picking at the scab!

2 traditional american

The father of American tattooing as we know it is Norman Keith Collins, aka Sailor Jerry. Collins joined the U.S. Navy in 1930 where he gave tattoos to sailors as a means to commemorate their travels. Colors are saturated, and figures are small, though exaggerated. “Most people would call it cartoony,” says Nick Barkley, manager at Tattoo Paradise (2444 18th St. NW; 202-232-6699). Think swallows with embellished features or pouty pinups with way-beyond-Barbie proportions.

NICK’S WORDS OF WISDOM

“Get the tattoo where you want it, not where you think will be the least painful. Pain is temporary — you want the tattoo in the right spot.”

3 photo-realism

Advancements in equipment have made photo-realistic designs, such as your beloved greyhound or your favorite cast member of “The Golden Girls,” a possibility. “Usually we work right from a photograph,” says tattoo artist Matthew Wojciechowski at Jinx Proof (3285½ M St. NW; 202-337-5469). “When you translate it to a drawing, it ends up really nice because we add contrast and shading.” While impressive when well executed, photo-realistic tattoos tend to lose their likeness as the skin ages and ink fades.

MATTHEW’S WORDS OF WISDOM

“It’s hard for an artist to understand what a client wants from looking on a phone. Print out your design; make a drawing, even if it’s a stick figure.”

Tattoo equipment you'd find in a 1930s parlor

‘skin’ showing

If every tattoo tells a story, consider the Mansion at Strathmore’s “Skin” exhibit an unabridged novel about the history of body modification (10701 Rockville Pike, Md.; 301-581-5109; open now through Nov. 3). Featuring the work of renowned tattoo, henna, makeup and body-paint artists, the show explores ways in which people voluntarily alter their physical appearance. “Never mind that our bodies change themselves without us doing anything,” says the collection’s curator, Harriet Lesser. “I wanted to explore ways we can present ourselves as a canvas to the public.”

Highlights include line drawings and photographs of an elaborate peacock tattoo by Paul Roe of D.C.’s Britishink (508 H St. NE; 202-302-1669) and an uncanny rendition of Jack Nicholson’s face from “The Shining” positioned on a man’s calf by Robby Latos of Gaithersburg’s Raw Ink (7601-D Airpark Road, Md; 301-355-5666). Also included: photography from Silver Spring artist John Borstel that examines how people present themselves through cosmetics; work in henna by Clarksburg, Md., artist Bhavna Naik; painter Craig Tracy’s acrylic body art; and an installation pitting a 1930s tattoo salon against a modern-day parlor.

Be sure to make it to the exhibit before it closes, because unlike a tattoo, it won’t be here forever. “Tattoos mark something that cannot be taken away from you,” Lesser says. “You can lose your car, your house, a relationship, but the tattoo stays. Even when you remove it, it’s still there.” H.S.

The ReelistRush to Judgment

Flipping back through my calendar, here's what August looked like for me: bad movie, "Compliance," bad movie, "The Perks of Being a Wallflower," bad movie, bad movie, "End of Watch." But just as I know the sun will rise tomorrow, I know things will get better as we approach the end of the year, particularly because I have a "Looper"/"Pitch Perfect" double feature next week. And nothing can compare to December, when the awards-grabbing starts.

By Kristen Page-Kirby

This year, though, that may change. The Academy (as in "I'd like to thank the") announced Tuesday that Oscar ballots are due Jan. 3, 10 days earlier than they were due in 2012. That doesn't affect me — I'm not a member of the Academy or any critics' association. Some say this makes the Golden Globes irrelevant, ignoring the fact that the Golden Globes have always been irrelevant.

What this change really does is cut down on the time that many Academy voters have to see the glut of award-caliber films that Santa (or Harvey Weinstein) brings. A lot of members will have to find a way to see a number of Oscar contenders between Dec. 25 and Jan. 3 (by my count, it's at least four). Some worthy film is going to get the shaft simply because of timing.

All of which actually gives me hope. This could mean that in years to come, December won't be the only month of riches, and that August will be better for it.

'Master' Work

For his latest movie, director Anderson crafts a sordid yet beautifully told tale

Film Review

"The Master" opens on a shot of swirling turquoise water, the roiling backwash of an unseen boat.

It's a dazzling, super-saturated image that recurs throughout Paul Thomas Anderson's film and serves as a fitting leitmotif, not only for the social and emotional churn that the movie seeks to represent, but also for the psychic state of the audience itself. Viewers will either find themselves afloat on the film's near-ecstatic embrace of filmmaking technique and bravura acting or drowning in a vortex of maddeningly opaque, unresolved tensions.

The Master (R)

► In a Nutshell: A Navy veteran arrives home from war unsettled and uncertain of his future — until he is tantalized by the Cause and its charismatic leader.
► For Fans of: "Magnolia"

From that mesmerizing aquatic froth that sets up the meditative subtext of "The Master," Anderson travels to Guam during the final days of World War II, where a sailor named Freddie (Joaquin Phoenix) is cavorting with his buddies in a primitive male paradise.

Freddie and his mates return to an America whose new ethos of gumption and optimism feels at odds with the carnage they've just witnessed. After trying to make a living as a photographer in a swank department store, Freddie hits the road, bootlegging an alcoholic concoction, pursuing furtively compulsive sexual encounters and finally Viewers will either find themselves afloat on the film's embrace of filmmaking or drowning in a vortex of unresolved tensions.

BackstoryAbout Scientology

One of the reasons "The Master" has been awaited so breathlessly is because Lancaster's character was rumored to be based on L. Ron Hubbard, the founder of the Church of Scientology. Similarities are there, but "The Master" owes its psychological underpinnings less to Hubbard's Dianetics than to Hegelian dialectics, whereby the power dynamics between masters and slaves promise self-awareness but also an existential fight to the death. (TWP)

stowing away, drunk, on a party boat at a San Francisco dock.

The boat turns out to belong to Lancaster Dodd (Philip Seymour Hoffman), who, upon meeting Freddie the next morning, describes himself as "a writer, a doctor, a nuclear physicist and a theoretical philosopher." Seeing that Freddie has been on a bender, he also announces that the younger man is "aberrated," a disjointed state of being that Lancaster seeks to mend by way of his self-styled religion, the Cause. While the boat bobs its way from Northern California through the Panama Canal to New York, Lancaster will introduce Freddie to the tenets of past lives, time travel and unconscious drives that comprise the Cause's core beliefs. They enter an alternately symbiotic and dramatically dysfunctional relationship, observed from an intimate distance by Lancaster's all-seeing wife, Peggy (Amy Adams).

But instead of using Lancaster and Freddie as a way to frame a larger idea, Anderson uses epic tone and scale to frame what's essentially the pathetic, unrequited love story between a megalomaniacal crank and a lecherous drunk.

A Twist on Buddy Cops

Tense and violent, 'End of Watch' offers surprising nuance

Film Review

There are no dirty cops in "End of Watch," another tense, violent — and surprisingly affecting — police drama from "Training Day" writer David Ayer. Ayer, who also directs, has created a portrait of law enforcement under pressure that is as ennobling as it is gritty. Despite enduring a level of work stress well beyond what most of us deal with, its heroes, LAPD officers Brian Taylor and Mike Zavala (Jake Gyllenhaal and Michael Peña, respectively), aren't alcoholic, on the take or gratuitously violent.

They aren't altar boys, either.

Occasionally, Brian and Mike bend the rules. In one scene, Mike removes his service weapon and dukes it out, hand to hand, with a citizen who's been baiting him.

Such is the macho code of the street. Like "Training Day," "End of Watch" is a testosterone-fueled roller coaster ride where, for the most part, the only significant women are arm candy — Anna Kendrick as Brian's girlfriend and Natalie Martinez as Mike's wife.

A welcome exception: One of the main bad guys is actually a bad girl. Rapper Yahira "Flakiss" Garcia plays a scary gangbanger that Brian and Mike tangle with when, in the course of their routine patrols, they inadvertently find themselves interfering with the local operation of a ruthless Mexican drug cartel.

End of Watch (R)

- Director: David Ayer
- Stars: Jake Gyllenhaal, Michael Peña, Anna Kendrick
- In a Nutshell: Two young officers are marked for death after confiscating a small cache of money and firearms from the members of a notorious cartel during what was a routine traffic stop.
- For Fans of: "Training Day"

As the film progresses toward its explosive conclusion, the level of tension and violence becomes a bit hard to take. Thankfully, Ayer allows Brian and Mike some time to simply talk. The exploration of their friendship, which has been forged under difficult circumstances, is deep and ultimately convincing. "End of Watch" is a buddy-cop film, with the emphasis on the "buddy." A Thriller for Fans to Judge

'Dredd 3D' is the flick its comic-book fans have been waiting for

Film Review

Good news, Judge Dredd fans. Pete Travis' savage interpretation of John Wagner's futuristic law enforcer adheres to the character's grim graphic-novel roots and proves superior to the corny misfire attempted by Sylvester Stallone back in 1995.

This, finally, is the Dredd movie comic-book readers have been anticipating.

Solemn Karl Urban (Bones in J.J. Abrams' "Star Trek" reboot) dons the trademark helmet and motorcycle boots of Dredd, a ruthless judge presiding over the postapocalyptic metropolis of Mega-City One. Two events complicate Dredd's mission to clean up his streets. First, he's saddled with a rookie partner (Olivia Thirlby) who's bound to slow him down. Fairfax's new Angelika Film Center and Cafe, which features eight screens and an upscale menu, opens Friday.

Modernist Multiplex

The upscale Angelika raises the bar (and price) for moviegoing

Film

Is the Washington area ready for the $13 movie ticket? The company behind the new Angelika Film Center and Cafe thinks so.

Looking like a modernist battleship that has somehow slipped into dry dock near the intersection of Lee Highway and Gallows Road in Fairfax County, the soaring, glass-fronted multiplex, which opens Friday, is the latest addition to the area's movie landscape.

Featuring eight black-box screening rooms (ranging in size from 100 to 300 plush stadium seats), a cafe menu offering braised short-rib panini, an upscale concession stand and a third-floor lounge serving beer and wine with gorgeous sunset views, the theater is the latest outpost of the boutique-theater chain best known for its flagship moviehouse in New York's SoHo.

Although the Angelika plans to offer a range of discounted tickets — for weekday morning screenings, matinees and “Baby Boomer Thursdays,” for example — its full-price admission is an area high-water mark.

So what do you get for your money, aside from hardwood floors, a chandelier and the privilege of calling the box office the “concierge”?

Well, it's gorgeous, for one thing. But what matters most is what's on the screen.

Along with foreign and indie fare that one can find elsewhere, the Angelika will offer occasional area exclusives, such as “Hello I Must Be Going.”

But a little ambience doesn't hurt. And the range of amenities is sufficiently enticing — with a menu created by “Top Chef” contestant and producer Lee Anne Wong — to give the area's restaurants a run for their money.

Sure, it's a substantial drive from the city, though only a 15-minute walk from the Dunn Loring Metro, through what is not the most pedestrian-friendly terrain.

If it sounds a bit escapist, it is. Isn't that why we go to the movies? MICHAEL O'SULLIVAN (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Playing*2016: OBAMA'S AMERICA (PG, 88 minutes)

One thing can be said for "2016": It's anything but crude. The best infomercials rarely are. And, make no mistake, Dinesh D'Souza's documentary profile of President Barack Obama is just that: a slick infomercial. D'Souza, who narrates the film with the buttery smoothness of a therapist, intersperses talking-head interviews with footage of himself poring over Obama's memoir, "Dreams From My Father," like a psychological detective, while visiting Indonesia, Hawaii and Kenya. The central thesis of "2016" is that Obama's worldview was largely shaped by the anti-colonialist, anti-white and anti-Christian politics of Obama's supposedly radical Kenyan father. M.O.

ARBITRAGE (R, 100 minutes) "Arbitrage" is a silky, sophisticated Wall Street thriller that features Richard Gere utterly in his prime, wearing his age and accumulated emotional wisdom with warmth, charisma and nonstop appeal. As the film opens, Gere's character, a hedge-fund billionaire named Robert Miller, is returning to New York from a meeting with a corporate titan who is on the verge of buying one of Miller's businesses; it just happens to be Miller's 60th birthday. As it turns out, though, he has much more than he needs, a surfeit that will take "Arbitrage" from a high-gloss 1-percent escapism to an increasingly gnarly corporate-slash-crime thriller. A.H.

THE BOURNE LEGACY (PG-13, 135 minutes) Surprise, surprise — "The Bourne Legacy" looks surprisingly good onscreen, precisely because it's so good on paper. Written and directed by Tony Gilroy, who penned all three Jason Bourne movies, "The Bourne Legacy" achieves its first order of business with intelligence and imaginative dexterity, building on the pre-existing story. For the most part, "The Bourne Legacy" takes place in an impressively recognizable world, where science, hands-free geopolitics and the modern security state intersect to create human warriors who behave like the human equivalent of drones. It's that world and its ruthless thought-leaders that Aaron Cross (Jeremy Renner) must navigate — with his memory intact, but driven by just as dramatic an inner need. A.H.

candidates going head-to-head in a farcically conniving congressional election. If only because of the actors involved, "The Campaign" has its share of laughs. The film even possesses a whiff of topicality, in the form of two super-wealthy, sweatshop-owning brothers who try to rig the election by infusing a super PAC with scads of money. But with the exception of that timely echo, genuinely scathing satire is largely missing. A.H. THE DARK KNIGHT RISES (PG-13, 164 minutes) Christopher Nolan has made a completely satisfying movie, one steeped enough in self-contained mythology to reward hard-core fans while giving less invested viewers a rousing, adroitly executed piece of popcorn entertainment. The film starts off with a nervy piece of midair showmanship in which the movie's villain, a terrorist thug named Bane, hijacks a CIA plane. Bane makes almost immediately for Gotham City, where Bruce Wayne

(Christian Bale) has been living in wounded seclusion for the past eight years, since he took the rap for killing a city hero. "The Dark Knight Rises" ends on a self-important note that would be insufferable if Nolan and Bale hadn't so clearly earned it. A.H. THE EXPENDABLES 2 (R, 102 minutes) Capping off summer with explosive action, "The Expendables 2" offers the send-off that adrenaline junkies are seeking before fall's more sedate releases. As he proved with the original, Sylvester Stallone grasps the action-oriented DNA of the films' badass cast of reprobate mercenaries (including Arnold Schwarzenegger, Bruce Willis and Dolph Lundgren) with an intuition derived from dozens of genre roles. (AP/THE HOLLYWOOD REPORTER) FINDING NEMO 3D (G, 100 minutes) The first bit of good news is that, nearly a decade after its initial release, the movie remains an absorbing-as-ever story about a clownfish willing to swim across an ocean to retrieve his only son with a wonky fin. The second bit of good news is that in 3-D, the underwater dazzler looks a bit more eye-popping than it did in 2003, that extra D adding a depth of field that makes the coral and ocean bubbles appear to extend for miles. The question is whether the version that requires a set of glasses wows enough to justify spending $10 (or more) to see it in a theater, when most families can just as easily pop in the frequently viewed DVD at home. It's not. JEN CHANEY HOPE SPRINGS (PG-13, 99 minutes) Kay (Meryl Streep) and Arnold (Tommy Lee Jones) have been married for 31 years and, now, in their 60s, they sleep in separate bedrooms. Carell). Most of the film transpires in Feld's office, as the clinician tries to get to the root of the couple's problems. "Hope Springs" is funny mostly thanks to Jones, who plays Arnold with a pitch-perfect dose of bemusement, discomfort and long-simmering rage. This is a movie fully aware that just showing up is often more important than even the most cathartic conversation. A.H. LAWLESS (R, 110 minutes) An inescapable sense of "so what?" sets in early with "Lawless," almost as soon as Shia LaBeouf begins his lackluster opening narration. In 1931, in Franklin County, Va., Jack Bondurant (LaBeouf) and his big brothers, Howard (Jason Clarke) and Forrest (Tom Hardy), divide their time between running the family's general store and a lucrative moonshine operation. It's a tidy living that is threatened by the arrival of Special Agent Charlie Rakes (Guy Pearce). "Lawless" feels less like it's breaking new ground than going through old motions. A movie about outlaws — whether indulging or interrogating their self-styled legend — should never play it this safe. A.H. THE ODD LIFE OF TIMOTHY GREEN (PG, 115 minutes) The title character of Disney's two-ply weeper, a mysterious 10-year-old boy who pops up in the backyard of a childless couple, is indeed odd. Covered with mud, he's also marked by a disturbing deformity: Leaves sprouting from his lower legs. Odder still is this: The people whom Timothy almost immediately starts calling "Mom" and "Dad" react in pretty much the same way as someone who's just found a stray cat. They start raising him as their own. Never mind that Timothy, by all evidence, seems to have been wished into existence by his unofficial adoptive parents. The movie goes down easily enough. Still, anyone with an expectation of reality, or an aversion to mawkish melodrama, should probably stay home. M.O. PARANORMAN (PG, 93 minutes) "Para-Norman" is a spooky, creature-infested campfire story laced with valuable lessons about teamwork, responsibility, courage and the celebration of our inner outcast. That last trait is personified by Norman, a quiet and unassuming middle-schooler who happens to be able to converse with the dead. For years, Norman's crazy uncle has kept a centuries-old curse cast by a disgruntled witch named Aggie at bay. But when his uncle mysteriously passes away, it's up to Norman, his perturbed older sister and his mild-mannered best friend to quell a zombie uprising and grant Aggie her final wish. SEAN O'CONNELL THE POSSESSION (PG-13, 92 minutes) "The Possession," a Jewish variant on "The Exorcist," recounts the torments of a nice suburban American family who's infiltrated by an evil spirit ("dybbuk" in Yiddish). Actually, the dybbuk is the second malevolent force to attack Clyde and Stephanie and their two daughters. First came the monster called divorce.

Clyde dotes on 10-year-old Em and 13-ish Hannah whenever he has temporary custody. So he agrees to stop at a yard sale and doesn't argue when Em insists on buying a dark wooden box inscribed with Hebrew letters. Naturally, Em becomes possessed by the dybbuk that was locked inside the box. Anyone who believes in dybbuks and other ghoulies will find "The Possession" terrifying. MARK JENKINS PREMIUM RUSH (PG-13, 91 minutes) Joseph Gordon-Levitt is Wilee, a Columbia Law School grad who opted for a life of adrenaline as a bicycle messenger. He sails across Manhattan on a fixed-gear bike with no brakes. At least he wears a helmet, which comes in handy on many occasions, including the scene that opens the film: Wilee flies through the air amid windshield shards after somersaulting over a cab. From there, the film rewinds, taking the audience back to how the young man landed in this situation. His boss at Security Courier gives him the task of picking up a package at Columbia. It's a rush delivery, and he has 90 minutes to fly down Broadway and hand it to a woman in Chinatown. STEPHANIE MERRY

1 In the Army Now

Things the Scottish do better than other people: whiskey, lake monsters and ... documentary-style theater? "Black Watch," a world-famous performance piece from the National Theatre of Scotland, is based on interviews with Scottish soldiers (in the Black Watch regiment) returning from the Iraq war. Shakespeare Theatre's Sidney Harman Hall, 610 F St. NW; through Oct. 7, $40-$85; 202-547-1122, Shakespearetheatre.org. (Gallery Place)

2 And You Thought It Was Safe to Go Back in the Water

Discovery Channel's Shark Week is over, but you can still live every week like Shark Week with the help of the D.C. band called, well, Shark Week. The group is known for onstage antics (and sometimes acrobatics) and plays a kind of jangly guitar rock that will transport you back to summer — or at least make you think of sitting in front of your television watching shark attacks. Velvet Lounge, 915 U St. NW; Sat., 9 p.m., $8; 202-462-3213. (U Street)

3 The Wages of Sin

In Mozart's "Don Giovanni," the title character (played by Ildar Abdrazakov, shown at left) has supposedly seduced more than 2,000 women. While he sounds like he'd be fun at parties, this is an opera, so he has to get punished in the end for all his sinful antics. Don't worry, there's lots of seduction before the sad denouement. Kennedy Center, 2700 F St. NW; through Oct. 13, $25-$300; 202-467-4600, Kennedy-center.org. (Foggy Bottom)

Host Jimmy Kimmel has a prank planned for the Emmy Awards

Ceremonies

SUN 7:00 After rolling out the red carpet Wednesday in anticipation of Sunday's Emmy Awards on ABC, host Jimmy Kimmel warned he's planning a prank on folks not watching the show.

"I have an idea for a prank, and if it goes well, will be great," says the first-time Emmy host. "If it goes badly, it won't be so great. I think it will go well. If you're watching, you'll be in on it. If you're not, you might get caught up in the prank."

Kimmel, whose "Jimmy Kimmel Live!" received its first nomination for outstanding variety series this year, is looking forward to seeing what TV stars look like out of costume Sunday.

"There's certain shows you watch, like 'Game of Thrones' for instance, and you see these people in their medieval fantasy garb," Kimmel says. "I don't know what these people look like in real life. I'm kind of anxious about it. I want to see the kid who breast-feeds his mother. That's who I want to meet most of all."

For the fifth year, the show will be held at the Nokia Theatre in downtown Los Angeles.

"You're going to see a fresh point of view on the television industry," says Emmy executive producer Don Mischer. "I think his point of view is unique and quite distinctive. There will be irreverence and humor — a lot of humor." DERRIK J. LANG (AP)

Fall Premieres

A City in Peril

The acclaimed HBO drama "Treme," from David Simon, creator of "The Wire," returns Sunday at 10 p.m. for a third season. Rampant crime and government ineptitude continue to threaten the recovery of New Orleans. Diminished by grief and loss but fed up with the incompetence and graft among police and city officials, the various characters — musicians (including Delmond Lambreaux, played by Rob Brown, above), chefs and Mardi Gras Indians — unite in the shadow of a murder prosecution.

FRI 8:00

2012 NCLR ALMA Awards (NBC) Eva Longoria, left, and George Lopez return to co-host this ceremony honoring Latino performers who promote accurate and positive images of Hispanics in entertainment. Christina Aguilera is this year's recipient of the Special Achievement Award for her work as an entertainer and philanthropist.

FRI 9:00

From Dust to Dreams: Opening Night at the Smith Center for the Performing Arts (PBS) Neil Patrick Harris hosts this unforgettable music event from the Las Vegas venue. Collaboration is the order of the evening as Pat Monahan of Train joins Martina McBride to sing "A Song for You," and Carole King gets some help with "You've Got a Friend" from her friend Mavis Staples.

FRI 10:00

Secret Princes (TLC) Remember Eddie Murphy's "Coming to America"? This series borrows its basic premise, featuring four exotic bachelor royals (such as Lord Robert Walters, right) as they come to America and go undercover — living and working as average joes — to find women interested in them for love instead of their money.

SUN 11:00

House Hunters Renovation (HGTV) The real estate and renovation genres collide in this series, which follows potential home buyers as they check out three properties for sale and choose the one with the best fixer-upper potential. (TM)

“Right now, I think we’re all fairly speechless. I only met Dmitri a few times. He led some great rides and put smiles on the faces of those around him.”

— KEVIN AT DCTRIUMPH.COM, a motorcycle enthusiast site for the region, laments the news that Dmitri Medvedev, bass player for local hardcore band Iron Cross, died in a crash in Frederick County, Va., after his motorcycle collided with a car. The driver of the car was charged with reckless driving.

“No actual reasoning was given beyond the conventional company line, but one has to wonder if Walmart isn’t somehow considering getting into some of the businesses that it was previously helping Amazon push.”

— DARREN MURPH AT ENGADGET.COM speculates why the mega-retailer suddenly decided to stop carrying Amazon tablets and e-readers this week.

“If you thought soccer hooligans were scary you might not want to watch this video. ... The player apparently didn’t know what he was picking up but, if he did, Iranian soccer players are a lot cooler-headed than I thought.”

— IHATELUPICA.BLOGSPOT.COM reacts to a YouTube video, apparently from an Irani club soccer match, in which a player throws aside an object that had been tossed onto the field, only to see it explode. (It appears to be a grenade.)

“According to a bunch of scientists, someday all of mankind will look just as racially ambiguous as I do. That’s right; thanks to evolution, when you’re looking at me, you’re looking at the future. A handsome vision of the future.”

— LISTENTOLEON.NET jokes about a new study by Stephen Stearns, a Yale professor of ecology and evolutionary biology, that says the “globalization, immigration, cultural diffusion and the ease of modern travel will gradually homogenize the human population, averaging out more and more people’s traits,” LiveScience.com reports.

“As it is the ending of the new ‘Hobbit’ trailer is pretty great. Helping establish that the tone of the new movie will be different than the ‘Lord of the Rings’ trilogy — the book is, anyway — the final shot has the dwarves getting comically smushed by a falling ... goblin? Giant? Troll?”

— ERIC EISENBERG AT CINEMA BLEND.COM likes the ambiguity of the new trailer for the film — set for a Dec. 14th release — based on the book by J.R.R. Tolkien.

Horoscope

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Entrusting yourself to another is not really as hazardous today as it may seem to you at first.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may find that trust is the key issue of the day. He or she who earns your trust is worth hanging on to.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You'll have reason to venture into unfamiliar and perhaps dangerous territory today. Equip yourself with navigational equipment!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You may be fooled by a message that seems to be quite clear and specific, but which in fact has been formulated in some kind of code.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll want to concentrate on the endeavors that really allow you to express yourself. Don't let anyone stand in your way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You may be waiting for information that is absolutely essential to your current efforts. Tension may rise during afternoon hours.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) You may be accused of taking things too casually at this time — and indeed, you are able to laugh things off more easily than most.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can find bargains, but take care you are not simply being drawn in by unscrupulous salesmen who have nothing of value to offer.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You and a friend or loved one have been skirting an issue for quite some time. Today you can speak about it openly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can lend your support to another's cause at this time — but you must realize that you're not likely to get the credit you deserve.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Today you will have to ask yourself why you are involved in a certain group endeavor. What's in it for you?

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The cyclic nature of your affairs will be highlighted today, as one thing gives way to another, in small but significant ways.

Samurai Sudoku

DIFFICULT

Fill in each column, row and 3x3 box with the digits 1 through 9 without repeating any. The twist in Samurai Sudoku is that the digits that appear in the overlapping boxes must work for both puzzles. A piece of advice to get you started: Don't focus on completing one grid at a time. Keep the whole puzzle in mind as you go, because filling in a number in one grid could give you clues to another.

Today in History

1897 The New York Sun runs its famous editorial, written anonymously by Francis P. Church, which declares, "Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus."

1937 "The Hobbit," written by J.R.R. Tolkien, is first published by George Allen & Unwin, Ltd. of London.

1970 "NFL Monday Night Football" makes its debut on ABC-TV as the Cleveland Browns defeat the visiting New York Jets, 31-21.

Shakira is pregnant with her first child. The 35-year-old pop superstar posted on her website Wednesday that she and 25-year-old boyfriend Gerard Pique "are very happy awaiting the arrival of our first baby." Pique is a soccer player for FC Barcelona. Shakira is due to be a judge on next season's "The Voice." (AP)

UNEXPECTED*He Does Make a Good Point

Dax Shepard said in an interview with Playboy that men resent him for dating Kristen Bell: "Guys should be excited that I got Kristen Bell. If Brad Pitt gets Kristen Bell, it's like, 'Well, of course he did.' With me, it should be, 'Oh good, a normal-looking guy got her. Maybe I'll get me a Kristen Bell.' But guys hate my guts." The chair's publicist maintained that, even after Clint's statement, it would not comment on the matter.

AGING IS FUNUnhinged, Unrepentant and Loving It

Clint Eastwood told "Extra" this week that "if somebody's dumb enough to ask me to go to a political convention and say something, they're going to have to take what they get." The 82-year-old was referring to his speech at the Republican National Convention, in which he addressed an empty chair. He also joked to Ellen DeGeneres: "The Democrats who were watching thought I was going senile. And the Republicans knew I was!" (EXPRESS)

"I like Kelsey Grammer personally, but this was a shockingly unprofessional thing to do."

— PIERS MORGAN TWEETED THAT HE WAS SHOCKED WHEN GRAMMER WALKED OUT BEFORE A PLANNED INTERVIEW. GRAMMER SAW A PICTURE OF HIS EX-WIFE CAMILLE IN THE OPENER TO "PIERS MORGAN TONIGHT" AND BAILED.

Dirtbag DigestShut Up, Paris

A spokesperson for Paris Hilton said in a statement that a recording obtained by Radar online.com does not represent Hilton's feelings about the gay community. In the recording—made by a cab driver in New York City—Hilton is heard saying that users of the app Grindr are "disgusting" and "probably have AIDS." (EXPRESS)

REAL NEWSAmanda Bynes Doesn't Hit Something With a Car

Amanda Bynes was asked to leave a workout class in Los Angeles on Tuesday night, TMZ.com reported. According to witnesses, Bynes was in a spin class when she started walking around aimlessly, switching bikes and reapplying her makeup. (EXPRESS)
